What is Fulfillment?

Fulfillment is the process of warehousing, picking, packing, kitting and shipping of product worldwide.

Management of this complex environment requires a high level of quality assurance, consistency in release and delivery of product. Diligence and special attention to region-specific regulations, import and export restrictions, tariffs and taxes is paramount to a successful fulfillment program.

Fulfillment programs are most effective when companies also implement strategic sourcing and formal buying strategies such as Vendor Managed Inventory (VMI) and Postponement to reduce financial risk, supply variability and lead times.
